Australia's Hunting Mecca

Mary River Australian Safaris has access to large hunting areas both in the Aboriginal owned Arnhem Land and their own private lands. In the Northern Territory's largely uninhabited Top End, its huge tidal rivers, estuaries, many coastal Islands and it's vast flood plains have become home to the magnificent buffalo, banteng, huge boars, an incredible range of world class sport fishing and, of course, the mighty salt water crocodile. It's no wonder that hunters want to come to the Territory to experience some of the world's best hunting, fishing and sightseeing.

The Top End of Australia's Northern Territory is an adventure-packed holiday destination. This is the land made famous by Crocodile Dundee. It ranges from rugged escarpment country with spectacular waterfalls to monsoonal rainforests and from wetlands to tropical savannah. The Top End is home to Australia's indigenous Aboriginal people as well as abundant hunting utilizes bird boys who drive the hard flying wild pheasants toward the guns strategically stationed at the end of milo and cotton fields.

Baja Hunting

Mark Buchanan, several friends, shooters and his crew visited Baja Hunting to film segments for Big Bore Productions soon to be released DVD, "Xtreme Wingshooting Baja."

"We shot 30 to 40 pheasants every morning in Mexicali," said Buchanan, "and on the last day, hunting down in Ojos Negros, we shot 85 quail in 2-1/2 hours." Buchanan attributes the booming agriculture of the area, good cover, ample water and tightly managed harvest numbers with Mexicali's continued abundance.

Arturo Malo hosts dozens of groups from the United States. Many hunters return annually given the liberal bag limits, easy access to the area and the superlative lodge and authentic Mexican cuisine. Baja Hunting is celebrating its 20th year in business.

For more information about Baja Hunting, stop at booth No. 2318-2320. Visit Arturo's web page, www.bajahunting.com, email, ARTURO@bajahunting.net. For auction at SCI Convention, Arturo donated a hunt, valued at $5,000, for two hunters and two observers.

the Saturday night auction. Last year one of Donald's first-week-of-the season hunts sold for $32,000 at auction.

The first week of the 2010 season, Sept. 15 - 19, is reserved for one lucky hunter to take the largest mature buck on the property. The winning bidder will have three days and four nights to take the largest buck he or she chooses. If the winner would like to share his or her experience, Donald has reserved spaces to accommodate three additional paying hunters during the same time period.

Donald Hill's hunters take 20 to 30 200-inch-plus deer a year with inside spreads up to 30 inches. Several 300-inch-plus monster bucks were taken in 2009.

Oak Creek Whitetail Ranch offers first class hospitality and accommodations. Their 6,000 square-foot lodge provides the finest amenities. You can hunt spot and stalk, from elevated heated blinds or still hunt, and hunt with your weapon of choice. All meals, one-on-one guide service, license and field prep are included. Non-hunter/observers may accompany the hunter at a nominal cost.

professional hunters and a qualified taxidermist," Sandhurst reported.

There are two separate hunting camps and rooms have their own bathrooms and electricity as well as a fully catered kitchen and full-time chef. Sandhurst camps are very comfortable and parents wanting to introduce their children to their first African experience will find this to be ideal. Also, there is a 1.3 km landing strip.

Check out Sandhurst Safaris at the convention.
